

WANT TO RETIRE AT AGE 55?

Planning Ahead Can Go a Long Way

Many people dream of retiring as early as age 55. If you're among those ready to be free of a schedule to pursue hobbies or new interests, it's a good idea to do a little planning first. Here are a few topics to think about, especially as it relates to funding what could be several decades in retirement.

Income strategies

To fund your lifestyle, especially before age 59 ½, you'll need to wait to pull from your 401(k) and traditional IRA to avoid the 10% early withdrawal penalty.

- The exception to the rule is that you can make a withdrawal early from either account without paying the 10% penalty if it's done as a Substantially Equal Periodic Payment \(SEPP\). Keep in mind that distributions are still taxable.
- If you leave your company after age 55 and before age 59 ½ you may be able to withdraw from your 401(k) without paying the 10% early withdrawal penalty. However, you do have to pay taxes on the taxable portion of your distribution.
- Taxable brokerage accounts: Ultimately, it's preferable not to tap into your retirement accounts before age 59 ½. That means you'll want to establish other investments such as a taxable brokerage account. There's no contribution limit or rules for when you can invest or withdraw cash, but keep in mind, your money isn't growing tax deferred and there's no tax deduction on this type of account.

Ways to fund health care until age 65, when you can apply for Medicare.

- HSA account: If you worked for an employer that offered an HSA account, that account is portable, so you can use the funds in it to pay for eligible medical expenses, but you'll still need insurance coverage.

- COBRA: While it only insures you for up to 18 months, you may find it makes sense to initially fund your health care with COBRA before buying private insurance. COBRA is offered when you separate from service and is typically provided through most group health plans, such as a private sector employer plan (assuming the employer had at least 20 employees), and you typically have to fund the full amount plus an administrative charge.
- Private insurance: You may choose to purchase a high deductible plan as a form of private insurance for the primary purpose of covering big, unexpected expenses.
- Affordable Care Act: You may want to price plans on the health care exchange and compare them to the cost of a private plan.
- Spouse's Plan: If you're married or have a domestic partner and are eligible, you may be able to be covered on his or her insurance plan.

Roth IRA: Now might be the time to consider a Roth conversion

- Once you retire, you may be in a lower marginal tax bracket, so you may potentially pay less tax when transferring funds from a traditional IRA to a Roth IRA.
- There's no limit to how much money you can transfer from a traditional IRA to a Roth IRA but transferring lower amounts can ultimately be more tax efficient than larger lump sums.
- It can be a good way to transfer your wealth to your heirs since distributions from a Roth IRA are tax free if certain requirements are met.
- Roth IRAs aren't subject to required minimum distributions in most cases.
- You will have to wait until age 59 ½ to withdraw earnings on your principal balance from a Roth IRA without penalty. Funds can be withdrawn penalty-free earlier but are subject to certain rules.

Social Security

You aren't eligible to start receiving Social Security until age 62. To maximize this benefit, you'll want to wait until your full retirement age, which could be between age 66 and 67, depending on when you were born. If you take it sooner, you receive less. Wait longer, you'll receive more. It's important to factor that into your income planning.

"Is 55 Too Early to Retire? What You Need to Retire Early," Forbes.
"What Happens to a 401\(k\) After You Leave Your Job?" Investopedia.
"An Employee's Guide to Health Benefits Under COBRA," Department of Labor.

The views expressed are for commentary purposes only and do not take into account any individual personal, financial, legal or tax considerations. As such, the information contained herein is not intended to be personal legal, investment or tax advice. Nothing herein should be relied upon as such, and there is no guarantee that any claims made will come to pass. The opinions are based on information and sources of information deemed to be reliable, but Mariner Wealth Advisors does not warrant the accuracy of the information.

The views expressed regarding IRA Rollovers are for commentary purposes only and do not take into account any individual personal, financial, or tax considerations. It is not intended to be a solicitation to buy or sell or engage in a particular investment strategy. Before initiating a rollover, please consult with a financial or tax professional.

Mariner Wealth Advisors ("MWA"), is an SEC registered investment adviser with its principal place of business in the State of Kansas. Registration of an investment adviser does not imply a certain level of skill or training. MWA is in compliance with the current notice filing requirements imposed upon registered investment advisers by those states in which MWA maintains clients. MWA may only transact business in those states in which it is notice filed or qualifies for an exemption or exclusion from notice filing requirements. Any subsequent, direct communication by MWA with a prospective client shall be conducted by a representative that is either registered or qualifies for an exemption or exclusion from registration in the state where the prospective client resides. For additional information about MWA, including fees and services, please contact MWA or refer to the Investment Adviser Public Disclosure website (www.adviserinfo.sec.gov). Please read the disclosure statement carefully before you invest or send money.

- Estimate Your Spending: Ultimately, you'll need to save enough to cover your spending until you can access retirement accounts, so consider looking at your expenses to figure out what's essential and what's discretionary.
- Plan for Free Time: Most of your friends will probably be working and, if you have children, they'll be in school. You'll want to think about how you'll spend your time in a way that's fulfilling.

Consider Meeting With an Advisor

These are just a few of the topics you'll need to consider if you're aiming to retire at age 55. It's a good idea to meet with an advisor who can stress test your portfolio to look at various market conditions and how your investments might hold up over time in various scenarios. No matter what, it's a good idea to plan ahead. At Mariner Wealth Advisors, we offer 360° advice designed to last today and beyond.